

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Table F.—Statement showing the banks organized and opened for business in 1913, prior to October 21, 1913.

Table G.—Statement showing the old banks liquidated during 1913.

Table H.—Statement showing the gain in new banks and paid in banking capital during 1913.

Table I.—Statement of the 53 banks that have increased their capital during 1913.

Table J.—A classification of loans and discounts for 1913 as compared with similar statements for 1911 and 1912.

Table K.—Some interesting data about savings deposits, with totals, and comparison with the showing made in 1911, 1912 and 1913.

Table L.—Receipts and expenses of the office.

Table M.—Examinations and published reports.

Table N.—Detailed statement of the consolidated State banks of each county from the report of October 21, 1913, as compared with same data for December 5, 1911, and November 26, 1912.

Table O.—Itemized statement of each of the 317 State banks and 18 branch banks reporting on October 21, 1913, arranged alphabetically by towns. These statements, in addition to the general ledger balances, contain the date of incorporation or opening for business of the banks, the names of their officers, and the number assigned each bank, given in the order of their formation.

REVIEW—SUGGESTIONS—RECOMMENDATIONS.

The individual tables given in this report from the statements of each bank through the consolidated reports by counties as well as the comparative statements show that the year 1913 was a very prosperous one for the banks. Banking conditions have been good over the entire State during the past year.

On September 1, 1913, Mr. J. K. Dixon, Jr., First Assistant Examiner, resigned to accept a position in Asheville, N. C. On March 1, 1913, Mr. E. H. Lucas, of Florence, S. C., was appointed Second Assistant Examiner, from which position he resigned on November 1, 1913, to return to his home city. This department has been without assistance since the above resignations, but the vacancies will be filled in 1914.

This department feels that the office of State Bank Examiner has proven of vast service to the State during the past year; notwithstanding the above statement the entire banking law of the State should be remodelled with a view of giving the department sufficient power to administer the law. The law should be made to cover banking in accordance with the rules of reason and justice. The department should be given sufficient help in the way of Examiners and clerical force to carry on the work properly and efficiently.

In a number of cases the action of the department has effected substantial benefits to the public, of which it is not aware; and banks, both State and National, have been saved losses by its efforts.

The importance of supervision of banks by some officer representing the State to keep them healthy and strong, has long ago passed the experimental stage; and the State which abolishes such an office will not be looked upon by the outside world as a progressive commonwealth. In this day,

“Banks are to the commercial world what arteries are to the human system. Through them pass the vitalizing, life-giving medium of exchange, and upon their healthy condition, commercial activity and prosperity, in the main, depend. Banks thus become, in a sense, public institutions. Though organized and financed by private individuals and for personal gain, they nevertheless serve an almost indispensable public purpose, and upon this account in most of the States, legislation has been enacted looking to their regulation, examination, and control.”

Such is the opinion of the value of banks by the Court of Appeals of the State of Kentucky. It then follows that if banks are of such value to a community, the rehabilitation of banks is the most satisfactory service which can be rendered, and much of the above has been done. It is obvious that it is not advisable to report in detail as to what banks have been saved by efforts of this kind by this department; true the Examiners receive no credit from the outside for this kind of work, for the depositors themselves never know what labors have been gone through to protect their interest.

Violations of the banking laws have been, and are continually, committed by some State banks and their officers, knowing that no penalty attaches for such violations, for the reason that there is none provided in the law. If this department is to be effective, it must be provided with effective laws which can be speedily invoked whenever the necessity arises.

Of all the questions for consideration before the legislature this winter are there any of more importance than the awakening of interest in the proposition and the passing of laws that the directors of banks direct?

In order to avoid results that sometimes obtain in the "one-man" bank, the directors ought to be held responsible where their neglect of duty results in loss to depositors. The "dummy director" who permits his name to be used as a drawing card for the bank, and who does not take enough interest in it to ascertain whether or not it is properly managed, should have no place in banking circles.

There should be some restriction as to number of banks. Almost any three or more individuals can organize and operate a bank for a time, and no one can lawfully prevent them even though the incorporators might be absolutely incompetent, and financially irresponsible. Often the seed which later develops into a second bank in a community where only one bank is needed, is sown through local jealousies and of factional quarrels. Irresponsible parties who have been denied loans by the existing bank are often the most aggressive agitators for a second bank.

A new bank organized under the circumstances where the established institution affords ample banking facilities readily takes on undesirable loans from these same promoters who are primarily interested in obtaining credit beyond what their financial responsibilities would warrant. It would seem to be the plain duty of our law-making bodies to place upon our Statute books a law which would make it impossible for a bank to be launched upon a community until every precaution had been taken to insure honest and capable management, and to ascertain that the locality would support the new bank as well as the old one.

There should be some restriction on the overdraft evil; the Examiner has carried on a continuous campaign against overdrafts with only a fair amount of success. The total amount of overdrafts in the State banks reached the enormous amount of $992,955.00 on October 21, 1913, the last called statement by this department. Nearly every bank will acknowledge that overdrafts are an evil, and should be corrected, but relentless competition forces many good bankers to permit their customers to impose upon them and thereby are compelled to invest depositors' funds in enforced loans.

Thirteen States have passed laws attempting in various ways to lessen the evils of overdrafts and make it unlawful to pay any checks presented when there were insufficient funds on deposit to the credit of the maker of the check. The United States Supreme Court has the following to say in regard to overdrafts:

"A usage to allow customers to overdraw and have their checks and notes charged up without present funds in the bank, stripped of all technical disguise, the usage and practice, thus attempt to be sanctioned, is a usage and practice to misapply the funds of the bank; and to connive at the withdrawal of same, without security, in favor of certain privileged persons. Such a usage and practice is surely a manifest departure from the duty, both of the directors and Cashier, as cannot receive any countenance in a court of justice. It could not be supported by any vote of the directors, however formal; and therefore, whenever done by the Cashier, is at his own peril and upon the responsibility of himself and his sureties. It is anything but well and truly executing his duties as Cashier."

The legislature is requested to seriously consider the enactment of a law:

Requiring a director to take an oath before entering upon his duties.

Requiring frequent directors' meetings and that directors of State banks direct.

Creating a Board to charter only banks which are organized under conditions which will merit public confidence and requiring some proof that the manager of the bank is competent.

Prohibiting a bank from loaning directly or indirectly to its own officers, directors or employees.

Restricting officers, directors, or employees from overdrawing in their own banks.

Curtailling a bank in borrowing money in inordinate amounts.

Curtailling a bank from loaning in inordinate amounts.

Outlaw private banks.

Provide adequate penalties for non-compliance with certain statutes to which there are now no penalties attached.

This department wants the co-operation and good will of the bankers and will make every effort to bring about a complete understanding with each bank, for it is only by the banks and this department working in harmony that we can accomplish the good that we seek—to make every bank safe.

Respectfully submitted,

TABLE K.

SAVINGS DEPOSITS.

This table gives the savings figures, including interest-bearing certificates, for the years 1911, 1912 and 1913; also the number of banks receiving savings and the number of depositors. The savings accounts in most instances draw 4% per annum, usually credited quarterly, while the average rate on the certificates of deposits is 5%. In some sections of the State where there is keen competition for deposits a small increase over the above rates is allowed, but the sum total of such deposits is not very large.

There are only five or six banks devoting themselves exclusively to caring for savings deposits, and these banks are operated in the same buildings and conducted by the same officers of the State or National banks with which they are associated.

TABLE M.

EXAMINATIONS AND PUBLISHED REPORTS.

All banks organized and opened for business through November of this year were examined. There were 331 original and two second examinations made during the year 1913. Since 1906, when this office was established, 34 reports have been called for. Three calls were made in 1906, four each in 1907, 1908, 1909 and 1910, and five in 1911 and 1912, and in keeping with the policy of the office, five calls were made during the year, as follows: February 4th, April 4th, June 4th, August 9th and October 21st. This is the third year five calls have been made and the practice will be continued. These calls are made simultaneously with calls for published reports from the National banks.

The first report in May, 1906, was responded to by 193 banks; the last report on October 21st, 1913, showed 317 separate, independent banks and 18 branches. Of this number three are private banks, the rest being duly commissioned and chartered.
